TAILORING DEPARTMENT.

Austrian Thibets

A SPECIALTY.

We make a specialty of Austrian Thibets, a material particularly adapted to extreme warm weather, being made of the finest Austrian wool. The texture is very soft and elastic, and as cool as linen. The material for a coat weighs 19 ounces; material for a vest, 4 ounces; material for pants, 14 ounces. They are strictly our own importation, and we do not believe they can be found elsewhere.

FINE GOODS

Are Those Carried by the Pioneer Firm of Buchman & Bro.

Eighteen years ago the firm of J. A. Buchman & Bro., wholesale dealers in cigars, tobacco and wines, was established in this city. The firm has, by strict business principles and the laudable desire to keep nothing but the best goods, won its way into public confidence and favor to such an extent it now enjoys a trade second to none in the west. The firm desires to call particular attention to its popular brand of cigars, viz: Mails, Colors to Favorite, Buchman's Peerless and Niagara.

Also to the well assorted stocks of wines, Kelly Island, Catawba, Scuton's Virginia Seedling, and Imported Sherry and Port wines. A call on this firm will convince all of the superior quality of goods carried by this reliable house.

CONFESSION

Of Charles E. and Rud Talbott.

RUD'S CONFESSION.

The following confessions were made by the Talbott boys on last Tuesday, July 5.

I have concealed to tell all about the killing of Dr. Perry H. Talbott on the night of the 18th of Sept. inst. I fired the fatal shot that sent him to his death. I did it under the following circumstances: Dr. Talbott returned from the fair at Marysville, about dusk on the evening of the 18th of September, 1880. He came in a carriage with the children. Mrs. Talbott, my mother, came to Arkoe on the train, which is near our house. I have heard that Dr. Talbott and Mrs. Talbott had a quarrel on the fair grounds before starting, but of this I know nothing personally. When the doctor arrived at home there was a call for him to go to Leighty's to attend to a sick child. He ordered the boys (as he called us) to put up his team and bring out his saddle mule. This we did and he rode away. About 9 o'clock p. m. as they say, he returned. I an' Henry Wyatt had retired to bed in an upstairs room. Shortly we heard mother crying for help, and we ran down stairs and entered the room where they were. The sight that I then beheld! appalled me. Mother was lying on the floor in front of the bed and father was kicking her. How they got down I cannot tell, but when Henry Wyatt and I entered the room father called for his revolver, which was lying on the bureau near by, and I grabbed the shotgun and shot him in the back. Just after firing the shot, my brother Albert P. came in from the barn where he had been, as they say, to put away the mule, and he assisted him to the bed. Dr. Talbott then called for a priest and told us the shot was fatal and that he must soon die; that we ought to say and be forgiven. He briefly referred to the family troubles, and told us that we must deny all. He wanted the public to think that the national banks and public corporations had hired an assassin to kill him because of his denunciation of them in some of his speeches. He urged us to obey his instruction and keep suspicion off of the family. This course we have pursued until death stared us in the face. He urged us to deny all and stand upon our denial, assuring us that it would carry us through, that to make our defense sure he would make his will and make us all equal distributees of his property and make mother the executrix of his will. Father was at times very cruel to mother and to us children, was a man of desperate temper, with whom no one could reason. I have withheld this statement, willing to undergo any punishment rather than expose the faults of my father or let the world know that I killed him to protect my mother. Suspicion soon centered upon the family and we were arrested upon the oath of J. V. Brigham. Much has been said and the rumore of the public was terrible. What my brother and I have said has been magnified and construed against us. Mitchell and Brighton have falsified from the beginning. If I must go to my grave at the hand of the executioner I shall die declaring that both of them have committed perjury. Henry Wyatt was so frightened by being arrested that he knew not what to do and swore, I suppose, to what his attorney told him. He is weak-minded and not responsible. Sherman Steinberger told the truth. He was at our house when Albert and I were moulding slugs of lead in an auger hole and saw us shoot one of them at a tree. This, however, was a common occurrence. Father's house had been and was for years an arsenal. We had been taught to shoot from early childhood and learned how to mould slugs of lead for that purpose. The fence posts and boards about the home place are perforated with lead, which is the result of us and father's shooting at times at a mark. I did not hear father till Albert to take the gun and run out of the house and shoot as though he saw some one running away, but Albert has always told me he did. I here now told all I know about this sad homicide, which has blighted the future of the children of Dr. Talbott and brought ruin and disgrace upon me, and if what I did is murder, I am guilty.

[Signed] CHARLES EDWARD TALBOTT.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, in the jail of Buchanan county, Mo., this 5th day of July, 1881. S. D. COWAN,
Clerk Buchanan Circuit Court.

RUD'S CONFESSION.

I have carefully examined the statement or confession of my brother, Charles Edward Talbott. As to what occurred in the house, on the night of the 18th of Sept., during my absence, I, of course, do not know, only as Edward has told me. I do know, however, what father said. He wanted suspicion kept from the family, and he told me after I had assisted him to the bed to take the gun and run out and shoot at anyone I could see about the premises, and to shoot anyway. I obeyed his order. He then talked over the family troubles and told us to deny any knowledge of how he was shot, except that he was shot by an assassin through the window. I have denied everything for my brother Edward's sake, and even swore before the coroner's inquest and the committing magistrate to that which I knew to be false. I was willing to do anything to help him out, and willing to even die with him as long as he preferred to keep the secret, but he has concluded to confess, and all that part of his statement of which I have personal knowledge is true. The window glass where it has been drilled by the shot came through was knocked out by me, with the breech of the shot-gun in the presence of father, and by his direction.

[Signed] ALBERT P. TALBOTT.

Subscribed and sworn to before me, in the jail of Buchanan county, Mo., on this 5th day of July, 1881.
